Aumund Group

Our client, Aumund Group, leaves a lasting impression in various ways. Its primary location in Rheinberg, on the outskirts of the German Ruhr region, has been and is cornerstone for building and asserting its leading market position over the course of almost a century and three generations. This achievement is well-deserved. Besides these core businessoperations, Aumund Holding has established its office in Venlo where corporate tasks are centralized.

Operating under the names Aumund Fördertechnik, Schade Lagertechnik, Samson Materials Handling, and Tilemann Chains & Components, the Aumund Group is a supplier of material handling and storage systems, including loading and unloading systems for trucks, ships, and trains. Our description is by no means exhaustive. The innovative range of products, stemming from substantial in-house research and development as well as technical design, is extensive and impressive. The systems and installations are provided both as individual components and as turnkey solutions for clients in, predominantly, heavy industries. This encompasses the handling of (bulk) materials in the iron and steel industry, mining, cement, fertilizer, and chemical sectors.

Through dozens of sales offices and service centers spread across continents, clients in many countries receive supply and support. The reliable systems are designed for continuous operation in challenging geographical conditions. Three generations of hard work and strong family values, integrated into a global Aumund network, pave the way for a future marked by growth.
